Calling all local Walking, Athletics and History Groups: Invitation to be part of 'The Missing 1,490 - Irish Famine Emigrant's Royal Canal Walk'

All local groups are invited to meet or join in with a group of 5 Roscommon natives who will be walking in the footsteps of the Missing 1,490 Famine Emigrants from Strokestown. The group will be passing through your area in costume on Tuesday 21st April - when they will leave Enfield at 10am and arrive at Maynooth University at 3.30 pm where they will be met by the University Historical Society. Do you live near the Canal - are you interested in Walking or History - Why not meet them, greet them or join them along the way. They would be delighted to see you and have your support and company on their long journey.

Todays Gospel -Locked Doors

It is interesting to reflect on how Christ enters. Locked doors mean nothing to the resurrected Jesus. Signifying security to the disciples, they are of no hindrance whatsoever to the power of Jesus' resurrection entering that sealed room in today's Gospel reading or to that same power going out. John doesn't describe Jesus as walking through the doors. No Hollywood special effects here. He states simply that Jesus 'came and stood among them'. Such simplicity conveys clearly just how insignificant locked doors are. So how about our 'locked doors'? God's word is telling us that God's power can be with us even though we are locked into ourselves. We don't have to open them first for God to enter! Just think of that and what it implies. We can burden ourselves with all sorts of baggage on our journey through life. We can lock out people and events from our mind and heart to preserve our sanity or our comfort. We can circle the wagons and live in fear of life's threats and dangers. We can run from life and its challenges. Our locked doors can be all sorts of things: prejudices, fears, neuroses, me-féin-ism, anger, whatever. Now that is the important bit of the symbolism. We don't have to unlock those doors for God to come and stand with us. In fact, we wouldn't be able to. Mission doesn't demand perfection. The disciples got their mission behind locked doors. So do we: to proclaim that God stands among us.
